Market in which there are multiple buyers but only one seller, who is thus able to control the terms of trade, especially pricing. There are natural monopolies, as for example public electric utilities and water supply.

See Robinson, J., The Economics of Imperfect Competition (2d ed. 1969);
Dewey, D., The Antitrust Experiment in America (1990);